PRESENTATION Bob Foster Chicago Park District Project Manager

The Park District will build a new artificial turf field in Lincoln Park, south of Wilson and east of Lake Shore Drive. There will be an eight lane four mile running track around the turf field. The field will be used for soccer, football, lacrosse and field hockey. The project will be presented to the Plan Commission on July 18. Construction will start by the end of September and be completed by June of 2014.

Advisory council members had numerous concerns and questions. There was concern that LPAC did not have advance notice about the new field or the Plan Commission meeting on July 18 and no opportunity to alert the community about either meeting. Concerns about damage to the running paths were raised and a recommendation was made that repairs to the running path be put in the budget. Members asked how long the field will last and were told it will have a ten year warranty. Questions were raised about lights, scoreboard, and sponsorship. The council was told the field would have lights that will only be used when there is an event. There will be no scoreboard or sponsorship. The project is being funded by the park district.

Community concerns regarding Wavefront Music Festival

Alonzo Williams, Director of Revenue, and Lou Vasta and Ramsay Oleoit, organizers of the festival, were present to hear the comments, complaints and questions from the community about the Wavefront Music Festival.

A resident of 6432 North Sheridan reported that she could feel and hear the festival, which was 2 ½ miles from her home. She reported hearing and feeling non-stop thumping for 30 hours. She could hear and feel the noise with her windows closed and her A/C running. The noise was louder on Sunday than on Saturday. A resident of 5100 Marine Drive reported that the vibrations knocked the pictures of her walls 3 times and told Alonzo “no matter how much money you make it’s not worth it to hold a whole community hostage.”

Questions were raised about the decibel level of the festival. On Sunday, the decibel level of the festival was 105. By contrast, a screaming baby registers at 85 decibels and a jackhammer at 102 decibels. Lou Vasta stated that the organizers are looking into engineering techniques to manage the sound for future Wavefront festivals. The organizers also promised to downsize the festival next year and reduce the number of stages. Alonzo said there is a multi-year agreement with the promoter and that next year’s festival will be 3 days again. He said he would work with the promoters to address the community’s concerns and then come back to LPAC with the changes in the festival

Traffic congestion was another issue. A resident from Irving Park and Pine Grove asked why car pooling, biking and public transportation weren’t promoted. Another member of the community asked why no one was directing traffic during the event.

An advisory council member observed that some events “reach the limits of civility” and that this event may be one that has reached those limits. She suggested that events such as this be charged for the staff that is present during the event to monitor conditions. Better monitoring might help bring events such as this within the limits of civility.

Community members complained that this year’s festival had more stages than last year and were told the event would be downsized next year. An advisory council member reported that she received emails from as far away as Evanston complaining about the noise. She also received complaints about cars unloading on Lake Shore Drive. She stated she had more complaints about this event than any other event. She also reported that the Park District was not responsive to complaints from the community. When residents called to complain about noise and other issues, they were told “they have permits.”

Lou Vasta told the group that there are four more years left on the contract for this event. He said next year there will be transportation aides and bike valets. The organizers will emphasize public transportation to the event. The event will have fewer stages. The organizers will work with sound engineers to manage the noise. The organizers will come back to LPAC in the fall to present their plans and the promised changes.

Re: Permit Application for Montrose Travel Lift

Dear Mr. Casey

The Lincoln Park Advisory Council objects to this permit based on the potential negative impacts of this installation and its attending activity. We understand the requested pier system is needed to support a tall crane on wheels. We understand IDNR evaluation standards are navigability obstructions, instability of the edge, water encroachments and impairment of public rights, public interests and public use.

The Lincoln Park Advisory Council was formed in 1986 and partnered with the Chicago Park District to produce the Lincoln Park Framework Plan of 1995.

The Framework Plan references Montrose Harbor as a significant recreational site in Lincoln Park. Specifically this expresses park user expectations in the form of policy and design ideas for the Montrose Harbor that correspond to the public rights, public interests, and public uses in the IDNR 3704 standards. (A copy of the Framework Plan is downloadable from the archives section of ipacchicago.org.)

With this standard in mind, each of these points may be addressed specifically.

Potential for Obstruction to Navigation

The dimensions of this pier system are 50 feet long and width of 29 feet (two six foot widths plus 17 feet apart). This pier system will be close to an area where the CPD runs a school for young boaters. These boaters take their classes and store their boats at this location. This pier-system could be an obstruction to the comings and goings of these new boaters.

Potential for Bank or Shoreline Instability

LPAC has a 1993 Summary of Recommendations for Chicago Shoreline Protection by the Chicago Park District, City of Chicago and US Corp of Engineers on its website. According to this summary, the edge around Montrose Harbor was addressed in Reach 2N plans and subsequently improved. This summary states this is "not a long-term strategic plan but a means to restore what has been lost and forestall ongoing destruction". Given that statement, has the installed edge of Montrose Harbor has been designed to withstand the unforeseen wear and tear it will be subjected to by the traveling crane?

Potential for Encroachment

This pier system is adjacent to various other large piers and docking facilities. Yet, in the event there is inactivity either between seasons or with a failed business, this structure could be considered an encroachment into the harbor. Ideally, the harbor should remain clear of unnecessary structures.

Potential Impairment of Public Rights, Public Uses, Public Interests.

The Montrose Harbor area is enjoyed not just by boaters but by many different kinds of users. It is an area removed from the city with fresh air and marvelous views. In the 1990s's the Chicago Park District agreed with its users and planning partners that maintenance equipment and operations did not belong in the park. This was expressed in various ways in the Framework Plan. As a result the Park District moved the maintenance facilities in all Lincoln Park locations out of the park. This appears to be a reversal of that agreement because this is a maintenance facility with oversized industrial equipment that will certainly affect the historic views and landscapes, not to mention the issue of reducing parking access or the yet to be assessed issue of safety, or the issue of obstruction along the harbor's pathway. This goes contrary to the principles of the Framework Plan by reindustrializing the park. This should not be done.

LPAC does request that, based on various criteria, this permit be denied.

Respectfully,

Ellen Isaacson, President
Lincoln Park Advisory Council
