

Randi Doeker (Director)

Randi moved to Chicago in 1999 and immediately joined organizations related to her interest in birds and conservation. She currently serves as a board member of the Chicago Ornithological Society. In 2005 she founded the Birds & Building Forum, a website and educational forum that focuses on bird-safe design techniques.

Her participation with LPAC fits her interest because of the importance of the bird habitat in Lincoln Park. She currently serves as the council's liaison to the Chicago Park District.

For a change of pace, she also volunteers at The Art Institute of Chicago. In her professional life Randi is a marketing consultant specializing in business-to-business program development.

She holds BA and MPA degrees from the University of Colorado.
